Maxims To Guide The Underclassmen
From
One of your Seniors

Keep good company or none. Never be idle, if your hands cannot be usefully employed, attend to the cultivation of your mind.

Always speak the truth; make few promises; live up to your engagements; when you speak to any person, look him straight in the face.

Good company and good conversation are the sinews of virtue. Good character is above all things. Never listen to loose or idle conversation; you had better be poisoned in your blood than in your principles.

Your character cannot be essentially injured except by your own acts. If any one should speak evil of your life be so virtuous that none will believe him.

Always speak and act as it in the presence of your Maker. drink no intoxicating liquors; ever live, misfortune excepted, within your income, when you retire to bed think over what you have done, during the day.

Never speak lightly of anyone; make no haste to be rich if you would prosper, small and steady gains give competency with tranquillity of mind.

Never play any game of chance; void the temptation through fear, that you may not withstand it. Warn your money before you spend it Never run in debt unless you see a way to get out of it.

Never borrow if you can possibly avoid it. Be just before you are generous. Keep yourself innocent if you would be happy. Save when you are young to spend when you are old.

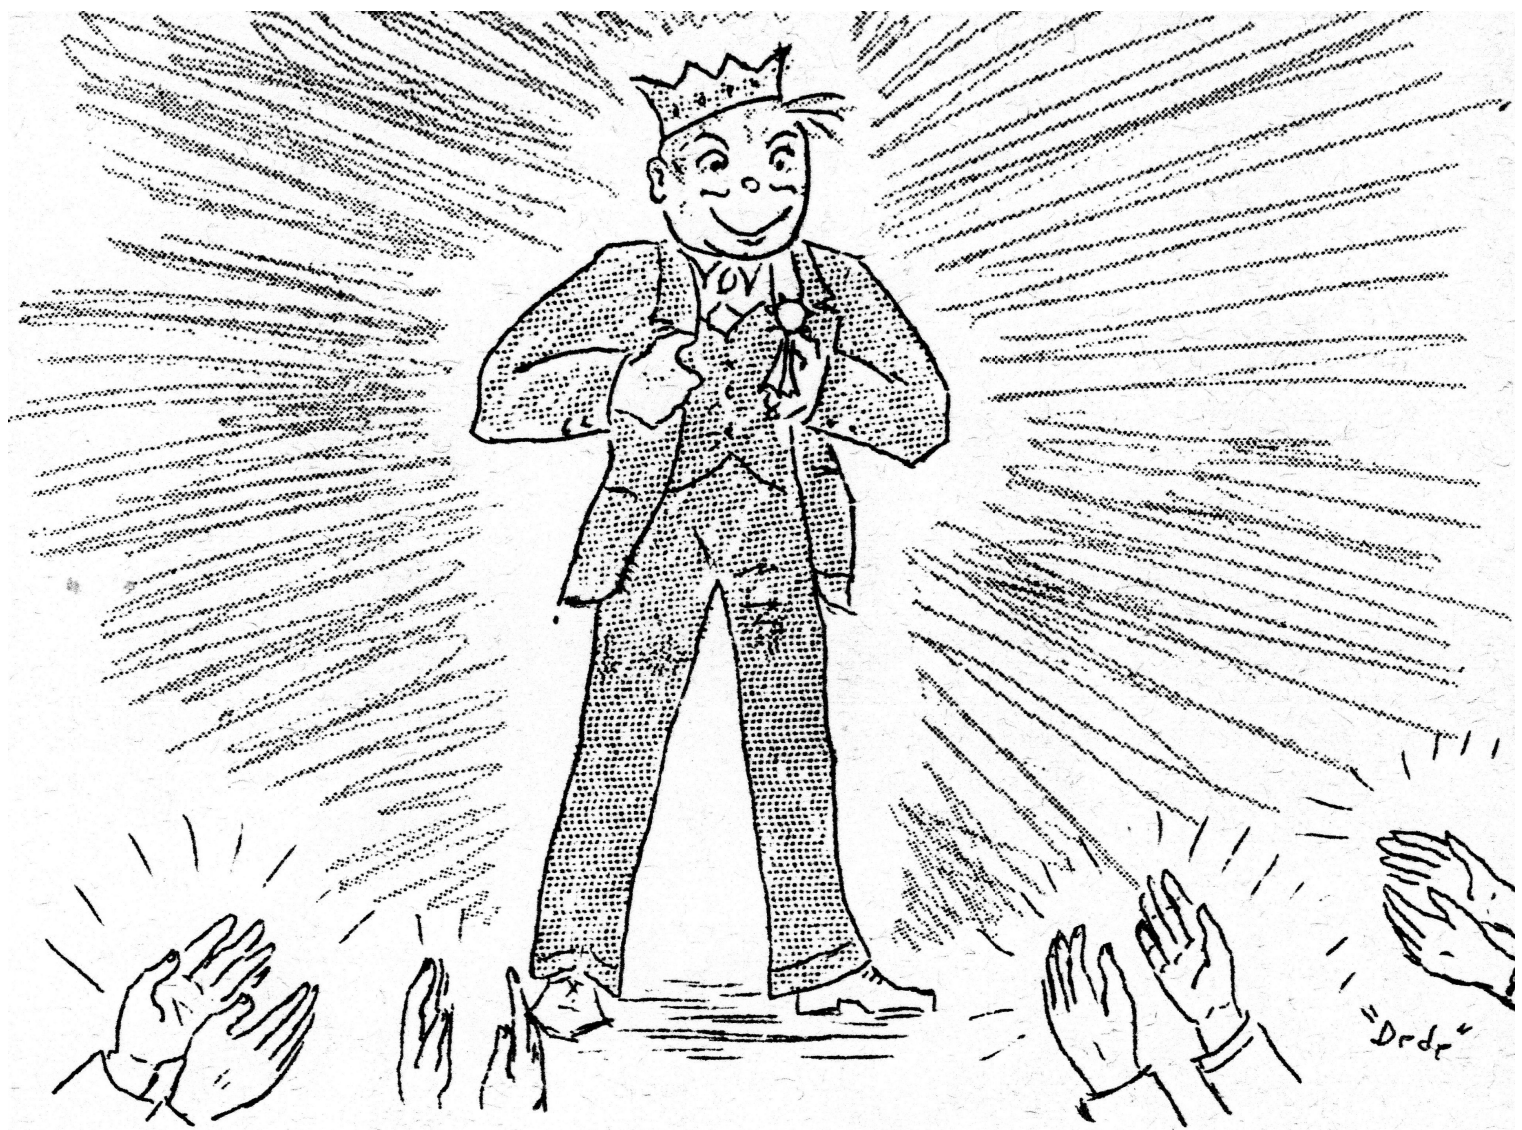

Never think what you do to alleviate the sufferings of your fellow beings brings time or money lost. Be kind and generous, for the whole human family is demanding one upon the others.

Always try to guide the pupils of lower grades by setting a good example. They usually think that what you do is all right for them to do also.

If a pupil from a lower grade comes to you for advice, do the best you can to assist him. He may have a chance to return the favor some day.

Always remember that good habits are the best substitute for poor ones and that they are a means of breaking undesirable habits.

If you become a member of a school organization remember that only through cooperative effort on the part of each member can that organization be successful. You will be a vital part of it. Do your part willingly, unselfishly and as well as your ability will allow.

HORN & QUILL

There are so many pupils in this school who do not know just what goes on behind the scenes of the Horn and Quill Club, and for their benefit we will attempt to describe one of the regular meetings and let them be the judge.

Having read the notice on the bulletin board announcing that a meeting is scheduled for 6:00 o'clock on Wednesday night, the members arrive at the school house at the time set for the meeting. The president, promptly calls the meeting to order and then asks the secretary if she will please read the roll-call and minutes of the last meeting. Then he asks the club if there are any additions, omission or corrections and, if not, approves the minutes. Now, with the preliminaries over, the president opens the meeting to the business on hand. Any old business, as we call it, which may have been left over from the last meeting and any new business which anyone cares to mention is the gist of the meeting. As a matter of fact the gist of all the meetings is the "old or new business". When it is necessary, during the meetings, a vote is taken on the various questions which confront the club. During all this time the secretary keeps the minutes of the meeting and keeps all records and other material. When all the business and other matters have been taken care of, some member makes a motion that the meeting adjourn and when all agree, the president legally adjourns the meeting and all the members leave the building. That, dear students, is one of the meetings described completely.

Now that you have mentally visited one of our meetings; the club wishes you to know how to become a member. Of course, every member must be a student of the school (this student rule was made to prevent fifth columinists from entering our club). If any person submit's one hundred lines and said one hundred are printed in the Kat ahdin Chronicle, that said person may enter said club. There are a few other ways and means of entering the club, such as typing five stencils for the paper and working for so many hours on the mimeograph. However, the one hundred lines published method is the one most generally used.

The membership of this club is made up of the following: Alma Michaud, Ferne Crosby, Barbara Ames, Bill Nicholson, John Jameson, Alfred Banis, Ruth Dyer, Wilfred Willette, Laura Johnson, Ellen Adams, Daniel Birt, Nina Chuilli, Frankie Dentremont, Georgia Dickenson; Mary Lou Thibodeau, Doris Surette, William Bishop, Reuben Boynton, Pat Murray, Virginia Powers, Ruth MacLeod, Buddy Nadeau, Wallace Adams, Dot Ames, Clifford Deveau, Ralph Fayle, Jacqueline Gagnon, Leo LeVasseur, Rudolph Morin, Raymond Paoletti, John Welch, Lucy Wright, Jacqueline O'Mara, Marnie LaZure, Leona Gagnon, Charlotte Bouchard, Frances Murray, Ida Nelson, Alfred Gaetani, and Margaret Cousins.

SAFETY PATROL

The development of this Safety Patrol program came into existence during the first semester this year when the student body was called in to an assembly to listen to Mr. Edward Sheehan and a State Police officer speak on the subject "Safety" and why we should have a safety patrol. The students were greatly aroused with interest by these speeches immediately upon hearing them.

This patrol functions every morning, every noon, and after school each day. All members are at their posts at 8:00 A. M. and 12:30 P. M., usually before school begins. The members leave classes five minutes earlier than the student body so that they may be in their places before classes are dismissed.

The duty of each member is to keep all students off the road and to prevent two persons from riding on a bicycle at one time. This enables the car drivers to use the highway without interference.

All the captains and members who were on this patrol have done an excellent job and the seniors who are graduating this year hope this Safety Patrol will be continued in years to come.

At the present time the captain, selected by the other members of the Patrol, is Richard Hackett and we wish to commend him for the excellent work he and his patrol have accomplished. Could it be those nice white belts or those shiny badges that bring results? Whatever it is, we believe that this little band has lived up to its duty and has done much for the school and for the town, too.

THESPIANS

Well, here it is June, and time for another write-up on the National Thespian Troupe No. 273. The members this year number up to twenty-two, which is quite an enrollment. The chapter this year consists of: Dorothy Ames, Jacqueline O'Mara, Alma Michaud, Wallace Adams, Virginia Powers, John Welch, Leona Gagnon, Richard Bouchard, Arthur Dentremont, Rudolph Morin, Jack Champion, Daniel Birt, Leo Pelletier, Mona Brewer, Lucy Wright, Frances Murray, Barbara Bacon, Mary Lou Thibodeau, Marjorie LaZure, Louis Pelletier, John Jameson, and Raymond Paoletti. The last nine members were initiated on April 16 at one of the two initiations held during the year. The other initiation was held in January. The Troupe, then consisting of only eight members, was increased to thirteen by the addition of John Welch, Virginia Powers, Leona Gagnon, Dorothy Ames, and Daniel Birt.

The second course was the inter-class plays, which were directed by a Thespian, and, of course Mr. Turner supervised the job. They were in two groups---the first group was the seventh, eighth, and ninth with the tenth, eleventh, and twelfth in the second group.

For the first course on our dramatic menu, our beloved Seniors, started the school year with the presentation of "Addie Sails Away". The cast was made up entirely of Seniors, and those having parts in the play being: Dorothy Ames, John Welch, Leona Gagnon, John Jameson, Mable Algie, Franklin Dentremont, and Virginia Powers. This play was directed by Mr. Daniel Turner, presented in the auditorium and enjoyed by a full house.

The seventh grade play, "The man of the Moment", was coached by, Jacqueline O'Mara and Dorothy Ames. The cast was made up of Max Pelkey, Jacqueline Stewart, Betty Johnson, Peter Gaetani, Joe Mardin, LeRoy Nisbett, and Charles Morgan. "One Fine Day", was performed by the eighth grade and proved successful under the directing of Alma Michaud, as it won first place. The cast consisted of Charlene Gibbons, Jeanette Pelletier, Gerald Day, and Catherine Birt. Next is the "Blue Beads" presented by the ninth grade and directed by Morin, the cast consisting of: Barbara Bacon, Marjorie Watkins, Elizabeth Spearrin, and Aubrey Bryant.

The second group of plays starts off with the winning play, "The Slave With Two Faces", directed by Wallace Adams. This has a larger cast of ten, Marnie LaZure, Mary Lou Thibodeau, Louis Pelletier, Irene Spearrin, Patricia Nadeau, Jacqueline Gagnon, Norman Willette, Freddie York, and Ralph Stratton. "Accidents will Happen" was presented by the eleventh grade and coached by Jack Champion who's cast was: Frances Murray, Lera Waite, Raymond Paoletti, and Leo LeVasseur. Last but not least, was "Maizie" presented by the Seniors and coached by Leo Pelletier. This had the smallest cast---only three, Alma Michaud, Leona Gagnon, and John Jameson.

The dramatic season wound up its program by presenting, upon invitation, a play in pantomime, "The Happy Journey", at the U. of M. Drama Festival. The actors and actresses for this play were selected after several eliminations had taken place. The following were chosen: Jacqueline O'Mara, Rudolph Morin, Mary Lou Thibodeau, Raymond Paoletti.

Thespians # 2

Francis Champion, and Mona Brewer. This play was presented by our school rather than participating in the annual State One Act Contest Play.

Oh, yes, we mustn't leave out the trip to Orono taken by quite a large number of our students at the same time "The Happy Journey" was presented in Orono. Why did these others go? Why! Didn't you know that they went to see "Hamlet"? It was presented by the Maine Masque on that day for the benefit of high school students who wished to see it. Besides this, it was only the second time this play had been presented in an uncut version by either a professional or non-professional group in this country. You may rest be assured that all who went enjoyed the performance immensely---especially the Seniors, who had read the play with Mr. Turner before going.

This is our school year completed with many happy memories to look back to, and may new talent and successful plays be discovered next year for more dramatic successes at Schenck and more glory for Mr. Turner.

STUDENT COUNCIL

"Who's the important looking individual keeping order in the hall?" Why, it's the Student Council member. The Student Council has been our only form of Student Government since it was reorganized by Principal P. E. Johnson in 1928. This year, the following students were members: President, John Welch; Vice President, Raymond Paoletti; Treasurer, Alfred Gaetani; Secretary, Dorothy Ames; also, Mabel Algie, Gerald Coon, Barbara Ames, Gilbert Chaisson; Pat Murray, Roderick Robertson, Elizabeth Spearrin, Ora Glidden, John Hale, Mary Casey, Peter Gaetani, and Jean Hackett. The members are chosen by the students, two from each class, including the officers.

The duties of these students are to aid the principal in governing the school, to suggest activities outside of school and to raise money for school supplies, etc. by having socials, dances, etc.

For next year, the following officers have been selected: President, Raymond Paoletti; Vice President, Roderick Robertson, Secretary, Barbara Ames; Treasurer, Gilbert Chaisson. Other members will be: Mona Brewer, Patricia Murray, Elizabeth Spearrin, Howard Dentremont, John Hale, Catherine Birt, Peter Gaetani, Jean Hackett, James Michaud, and Gloria Bacon. The Junior and Senior classes each have to select one more member to represent their class.

To be elected a member of the Student Council is one of the highest honors that a student may have in high school.

Next year the Council plans to attend the Student Council Conference since it was unable to attend this year.

Mr. Johnson has given the council new ideas for next year. Here are some of them. To try and keep the halls as quiet as possible and when the teacher leaves the room, the council member in that room is to be in charge, and anyone disobeying the council member will be punished.

The council this year was weak. We will try and make it stronger, then ever before. The council will try to take better care of the school building. This year the members weren't on their posts regular, so they are going to have a schedule for the members to follow. They will report to their post on time.

Mr. Johnson has backed the council up in everything we did. The members of the council were told in their last meeting, to bear down on their friends as well as other pupils, also to watch for pupils marking on the walls. The members of the council hope that all the students cooperate with them. If they make someone stay after school don't get angry at the council members!

Girl's Sports

The Schenck girls came through the basketball season with flying colors. With more games and new schools on their schedule, the girls, with nearly all members on last year's team graduated had quite a few inexperienced members on the team. Next year we predict a fast moving group. Graduation will take Leona Gagnon, and Co-captains, Mabel Algie and Alma Michaud. Congratulations Coach McCann for the good work your girls have done.

The members of the team were Co-captains, Mabel Algie and Alma Michaud; Mabel Runnells; Barbara Ames; Pauline Runnells; Leona Gagnon; Charlotte Bouchard; Lucy Wright; Doris Surrette; Irene Spearrin; Laura Savage; Wendella Fernald; and Theresa Michaud. Frances Murray served as manager and Jacqueline Gagnon was her assistant. During this school year the orchestra has played at plays and speaking contests. All of the musical organizations were heard "Maine Schools on the Air" when it was presented from our school round Christmas time.

Schenck was well represented at the Northern Maine Festival in Millinocket, May 3, by our Band, Orchestra and Mixed Boy's-Girl Glee Clubs. This is the first time our school has ever sent representatives to a Musical Festival, and, judging from the happy experience of this one, all the students want to go to another next year.

Letters are to be awarded to the Band and Orchestra members the end of the year. As in Basket-ball, these letters will show that a member, through hard work and earnestness, and attendance at rehearsals, deserves a letter to signify all of these things.

Next year the Band plans to have uniforms.

Well, that seems to sum up the musical activities pretty well here's where we close. We hope that next year will produce as fun and enjoyable a program in music as it has this year.

PROSPECTS FOR 1941-42

As one gazes into the crystal we again see Coach Reagan as the men of the Schenck boys varsity basket-ball team. Also, seen-- is the Wolverine Quintet fighting its way to the top, and playing in the tournament. With seven varsity men graduating, many positions will be open.

Into the crystal the image of Coach Reagan and team disappear and a Sophomore boy comes into the picture. Although a substitute, he played in many of the games. He is very fast, has a good eye for the basket and lots of stamina. His name is Howard Dentremont, a brother of "Frankie" who played regular on the Varsity this year.

Another of the past seasons' substitutes who we think will come through with flying colors is "Rudy" Morin who has played two years, on the Junior Varsity and part of one year on the Varsity. He is a good shot and has the fight of a wolverine in him.

George Pinhead Nelson may have been next year's star, but is disqualified because of his age. "Pinhead" played center for the past two seasons and was high scorer in this past year.

Nelsons shoes may be filled either by James Adams or Edgar Hamm Hamm may have a slight advantage over Adams because of experience.

We may have a left-handed Senior, "Bert Goddard." He is an excellent eye for the basket, but lacks experience.

The guard positions may be filled by Ora Glidden and Raymond Paoletti who have both had considerable experience on the Junior Varsity.

The Schenck Basketball team came through the season very successfully under the supervision of the new Coach, Bill Reagan.

In past years the Boys Varsity Basketball team was coached by Mr. McCann, who also coached the girls team, thus making it hard to put in much time with any one team.

Before coming to Schenck, Coach Reagan coached in Connecticut for 12 years.

Having a schedule of 16 games and winning 12 made the Wolverines champions of the Northern Maine League, but losing to Medway twice kept the quintet from playing in the Small School Tourney held at Brewer. The Stearns and Brownville Junction games were not in the League and therefore did not count in the championship.

This year's team played mostly a zone defense. Only in a few games did they use the man to man system of defense. The team members of this season are: Co-captains, Alfred Banis and Lefty Doe; Frank Dentremont; Gerald Coon; Howard Dentremont; Jack Champion; John Jameson; Edgar Hamm; John Sheedy; and George Nelson. John Welch served as manager of the team with Richard Groves as his assistant.

Coach Johnson's Junior Varsity Basketball boys had a very successful season, playing six games without any losses. The members of the team were: Rudolph Morin, Louis Pelletier, Ora Glidden, Archie Theriault, Edgar Hamm, Ralph Fayle, Bertram Goddard, Wallace Doe, Raymond Paoletti, Arthur Michaud. Frances Morin served as manager for this well-trained, hard playing group.

The positions of the Schenck team are: Pitchers, Lefty Doe, George Nelson, Raymond Paoletti, and Leo Pelletier; Catcher, Rudolph Morin; First base, Jack Champion; Second base, Gerald Coon; Short stop, Leo Pelletier; Third base, Ora Glidden; Right field, Howard Dentremont; Center field, Edgar Hamm; Left field, Robert Nesbitt. Alfred Banis holds the manager's position and Daniel Birt the assistant manager's. As yet only three games on the baseball schedule have been played. Results--two wins, one over Mattawamkeag and one over Lee; one loss--to Lee Academy.

All boy athletics have been supervised by Mr. Reagan and Mr. Johnson.

SENIOR ADVICE

The Senior Class of '41
In departing from their friends;
Leave this final good-will note,
Just to make amends.

As one pal to another,
We'd like to tell you-all,
That to get along you must admit
You simply must play ball.

By ball I don't mean sport,
I mean good honest labor.
In making tests, don't waste your time,
And do not help your neighbor.

Honesty is the best policy,
I'm sure you'll all agree,
And if you're smart, (I think you are)
You'll take this tip from me:

Next fall when the old bell tolls again
And you file off to school
Do your best in every way
And learn the "Golden Rule".

Odds 'n' Ends

So many things have happened this year that we don't know just where to begin, but there's nothing like starting. This year saw the addition of two new teachers—Mr. Robb, our new Manual Training teacher and Mr. Reagan, who teaches Natural Science, Social Science and English in the position formally held by Mr. Groves. Mr. Reagan was Coach of the boys basketball team while Mr. Robb took over the supervision of the school paper and Horn and Quill Club.

Next, we have an entirely new schedule for classes, the rotating plan. Instead of having classes every day, we have them twice every three days and periods are one hour long rather than forty minutes. With this schedule it is possible to have an Activities period. This period, once every three days, is looked to with much interest. Each teacher supervises one of these clubs: Camera Club, Mr. Robb; Bridge Club, Mr. Reagan; Speech Club, Mr. Turner; Sewing Club, Miss Burr; Etiquette Club, Miss Shibley; Fish and Game, Mr. Parsons; Physical Training, Mr. McCann; Study, Mr. Johnson. These clubs have been busily occupied during the year with activities which have been chosen to do. For example: the Etiquette Club has studied introductions; behavior in public; conversation; invitations; acceptances and regrets, etc., while the Fish and Game Club discusses such matters as pertain to Fishing and Hunting and having the Game Warden in to talk to them.

Occasionally class meetings and home room organizing are done during these periods and other times we have orchestra and band rehearsals under Miss Hubbard's supervision.

About Christmas time we did something else that hasn't been done in previous years. We presented a Radio Broadcast from our school auditorium on the Maine Schools on the Air Program. That certainly caused some excitement. Members of the Thespian Club did the speaking and Musical numbers were presented by our Glee Clubs, orchestra and band under Miss Hubbard's supervision. Quite a few calls were received complimenting us on our program and you may be sure they were well appreciated.

Let's see.....On, yes! We musn't forget that this is the first year in which our school has participated in debating activities. If you'll read Oratory in this book you'll learn a little more about it. Although we weren't terribly successful, the members of the debating club plan to keep trying and hope for better results next year.

The noon dances were kept up this year as they were last but this year an ambitious group of these dancers planned a new surprise a Real Vacation Ball! The dancers who attended this affair seemed to enjoy it immensely and hope that this will set a precedent for future balls.

Godness, we almost forgot to mention our newly formed Safety Patrol! This worthy organization was formed early in the year with Mr. Johnson as it's faculty advisor. If you'll explore a bit in the book you'll find more about this group.

Gracious! We didn't tell you this year was the first in which any member of Schenck was sent to the Speech Clinic at the U. of M. and come back, with a prize. Frances Murray won second place in the Humorous Reading Division.

ORATORY

The students of our high school are taking a great interest in all forms of speech which, in our school, includes speaking contests, spelling matches, debating, and speech clinics. Early last fall the seventh, eighth and ninth grades held their speaking contests in the High School Auditorium. Those who took part in this contest were: 9th grade, Mary Anne Morin and Elizabeth Spearrin, 8th grade, Gerald Day, Jeanette Pelletier, and Henry Federico, 7th grade, Bernice Boynton, and Patrick Federico. Elizabeth Spearrin received first place in the contest with Henry Federico receiving second place.

Later, in January, the three upper classes held their annual speaking contest in the High School Auditorium. This year a new system of coaching the speakers was used, in which each speaker was coached by a member of the Thespian Troupe and by Mr. Turner, too. The speakers were coached by the following students: Mary Lou Thibodeau by Wallace Adams; Lucy Wright by Rudy Morin; Irene Spearrin by Leo Pelletier; Wendella Fernald by John Welch; Frances Murray by Virginia Powers; Reuben Boynton by Richard Bouchard; Arthur Dentremont by Dorothy Ames and Daniel Birt; Jacqueline Gagnon by Miss Burr; and Jacqueline O'Mara by Miss Burr. The winners of this annual speaking event was Jacqueline O'Mara, whose topic was "Sky Fodda", and second place went to Frances Murray whose topic was "The One-Legged Goose". The other contestants had the following topics. Wendella Fernald, "No Room for Mother"; Irene Spearrin, "Loyalty", Reuben Boynton, "Sand-Hog", Jacqueline Gagnon, "Patient in Room L", Lucy Wright, "Youth, Like a Mighty Army", Arthur Dentremont, "Guilty, or Not Guilty", and Mary Lou Thibodeau, "Mothers of Men". The judges for the contest were: Mr. Robbins, Miss York and Miss French, all of Medway High School.

On April 26 the Speech Clinic in which our school now participates was held at the University of Maine. Four students from our school were sent to contest with students of other schools. These four were: Jacqueline O'Mara, Serious Reading; Frances Murray, Humerous Reading; Leo Pelletier, Group Discussion; and Bill Nicholson Extemporaneous Speaking. Frances Murray did such an excellent job that she won second place in the Humerous Reading division.

Two representatives, Alma Michaud and Leo Pelletier, chosen from the Junior and Senior Classes were sent to the spelling contest at Lincoln. Each student of these two classes tried out and eliminations were made until only two remained. Leo Pelletier won second place in the final contest.

For the first time in Schenck's history, there has been a debating team. Who's on it? Well--Lucy Wright and Stanley Mills took the affirmative side and Bill Nicholson and Reuben Boynton had the negative. The subject debated on was, "Resolved that the powers of the Federal Government should be increased." Although no debaters won, the team is going to be kept up in the coming years and with more success. Certificates were presented to the entire squad's supervisor in one of our assemblies. The certificates were sent to him by the Bates College Debating Council.

Elizabeth's First Meal in America

In one of the foreign countries there was a little girl named Elizabeth. Very soon she and a friend of hers were coming to America on one of the new liners. During the last few days of her stay in her home country, she was busy packing and all the other little duties preparatory to a long voyage by sea such as getting her passport, clothes, etc.

Even though Elizabeth didn't have anyone to say good-bye to, she felt a lump in her throat as she witnesses the fond farewell to their loved ones at the docks.

When they finally reached America Elizabeth and her friend were locked in a room and weren't let out until two ladies passed the door, and her friend said that one of them was her sister. Then when they were free and on their way to their new home the lady gave Elizabeth a stick of gum. Elizabeth chewed and bit on it but still this mysterious concoction wouldn't get any smaller or softer. She wondered what kind of sweets they had in America, but not knowing what to do with the gum she swallowed it. Since it was given to her she thought that she couldn't throw it away. This was her first meal in America.

LUCY

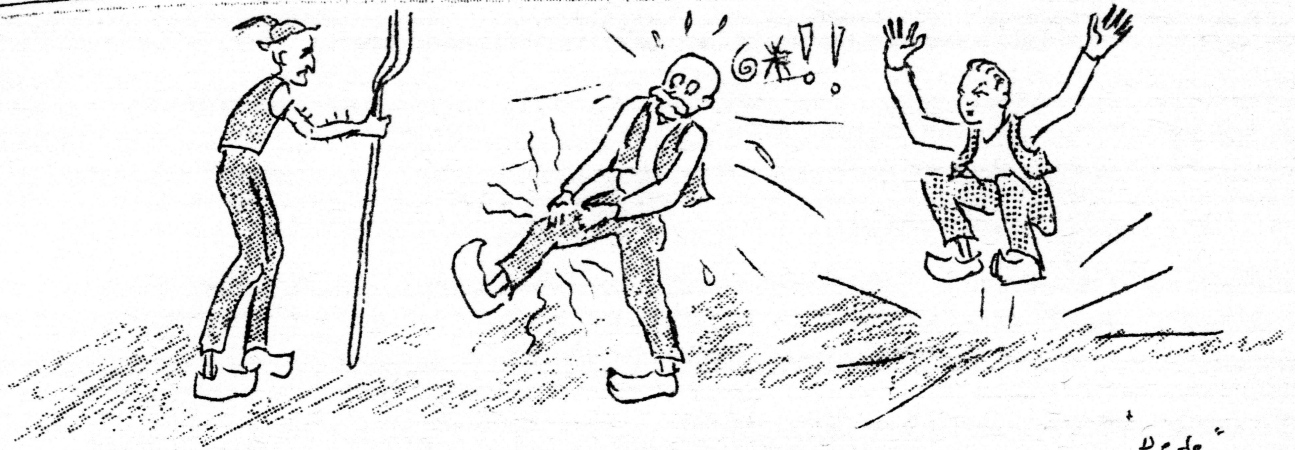

Ever since her parents had been killed in an automobile accident when she was four, blond, curly-headed, blue-eyed Lucy had lived with her aunt. As time went on Lucy became more and more convinced by some inner feeling that her mother wasn't really dead.

One day, a few weeks before graduation, Lucy was hurrying from the school, Bang! She ran into a woman whose arms were loaded with packages. After excusing herself, helping the woman with the bundle she started on the way home. For some strange reason the sight of this woman had struck a cord in Lucy's memory, but she couldn't place her.

On Graduation night while Lucy was presenting her valedictorian speech her eyes caught sight of that same woman sitting right in the front row. At the close of the program the principle presented Lucy with a beautiful diamond wrist watch on which was engraved "For Mother." Lucy fainted.

When she came to, the woman was at her side. "Lucy, dear, I'm your Mother. The day before your father was killed, I was riding alone in my car when it skidded off the road and rolled over. I received many serious injuries, and your father and my twin sister were coming to see me when they had that accident. I shouldn't have come but I couldn't bear to go any longer without seeing you."

When Lucy's aunt entered a few minutes later, tears of happiness filled her eyes at the sight of the happy reunion.

The Dutchman's Snake

Near the town of Reading in the state of Pennsylvania, there lived a well to do Dutch farmer named Peter Van Piper, and he had a son named Peter Jr. One day Peter Jr. and his father and the hired man named Jake, were haying on Mr. Van Piper's farm, when Peter Sr. yelled, "Oh! Mine Gracious! Peter! Peter!

"What's de matter foder?" answered his son.

"Oh! Come here quick! A snake is biting mine leg off!"

It so happened young Peter was very much afraid of snakes, and he kept away from his father and at the same time he kept saying, "Why don't you kill him, foder?"

"Der snake he is in mine breeches," said the father, "Help! Mercy! Come quick!"

Peter yelled for the hired man to come to the rescue, and Jake came running up with a club. "Where's the snake?" yelled Jake.

"Right there in mine pants leg," yelled the father, whereupon Jake hit father a terrific wallop on the leg, that knocked father flat on the ground.

"Oh, mine leg she's broke," said father, "but den, der snake 's gone."

Mr. Van Piper was then carried carefully to the house being very careful not to hurt his sore leg. On arriving at the house, he again complained that he could feel the snake biting. As his wife began to dress his injured leg, she found a thistle up his pants leg!

Moral-Don't make a mountain out of a mole hill.

On the Pedestal of Statue of Liberty
 Give me your tired, your poor,
 Your huddled masses yearning to be free,
 The wretched refuse of your teeming shore,
 Send these, the homeless, tempest to me,

OH'

Brring---- At the sound of the doorbell Hazel jumped to answer its call.

"Oh, hello, Mable. Won't you come in? I was just wishing I'd have some company."

"Yes, just for a minute," her bosom friend declared as she plopped herself into Peter's huge easy chair. "I see the bride has finally settled down to good, ole housekeeping. My dear, I have the most disturbing news.-- Guess where I've just come from---the station. Went down to see George off. You knew that he was going on that business trip, didn't you?" At an affirmative nod from the young bride, she continued, "Well, I hate to tell you this, but just after we'd said good-bye and the train had pulled out, I saw your Peter come into the station. It was quite evident that he hadn't seen me, because----- Oh, I feel terrible having to tell you this."

"Go on. Nothing can be that bad," urged Hazel.

"He met a woman who had just got off the 9:40 train."

A pin dropped in that room would have sounded like a bomb exploding. Hazel's lovely rosy cheeks turned ashen at those words, and she gripped the chair's arms to steady herself.

"But, Mabel, you must be mistaken. Peter would never do that. Why, he's the most faithful man in the world. What did she look like?" she questioned anxiously.

"I'm sure it was he. She was tall, very lovely, graceful, beautifully groomed and seemingly a charming woman. He took her in his arms when she arrived and said to her "Vera, dearest! I didn't stay after that."

A horn sounded in the street. Mabel looked out of the window. Seeing who was there, she gasped audibly.

"She's there, and Peter's just opening the door for her. Mr. look at the adoring looks on their faces. He sure has nerve, hasn't he?"

Steadying herself to the ordeal, Hazel opened the door with an unsteady hand and tried not to look too cool toward this beautiful creature with Peter.

"Hazel, dear, this is my long-lost sister, Vera. 'Member? I told you about her long ago. Haven't seen her in years. She's been designing in New York. Today she called up and asked me to meet her at the train. Of course I wanted to surprise you so I kept it a secret. Not mad, are you?"

"Of course not, Peter," and with these words she emitted a sigh of relief, which, although not audible, certainly spoke for itself.

THE LAST STORY

The western sky glowed red as the last rays of the setting sun shone over the bow of the "S.S. Athenia". Dark night clouds already loomed in sharp contrast to the fading crimson glow.

At the rail stood Ted Crowley, ace cameraman and foreign correspondent for the "Times." With him was Jane Welch, also a news correspondent. A slight breeze blew her short blonde hair as she watched the rippling waves made as the ship cut through the dark water.

"Every minute we're leaving it all farther behind. You know I feel kind of sorry that it's all over. I guess it will be nice though to be back home, where you can be free. Free to live as you please, without the fear of being blown up in your sleep."

"You don't mean to tell me that you want to go back now? Why! when we were in Paris I couldn't beg you to stay."

"No! I wouldn't go back if you paid me, but it was kind of fun. I mean that narrow escape from Warsaw, and the time we were held up three days by German soldiers who thought we were spies."

"Yeh, that was fun, but you've changed all that. Ever since we were married you've tried to sell me on the idea of a small cottage in the country where you could stop being Miss Welch and take on your real name Mrs. Crowley. You also said, if I remember right, that you would give up your job,"

"I did! I sent my resignation in before the ship left dock. So help me, I'll never write another word for a newspaper again."

"Is it a deal?" said Ted putting forth his hand.

"It's a deal," said Jane clasping his hands in hers, and May I never have my cottage in the country if I ever break it."

"Now that that's settled", said Ted, looking at his watch, we'd better turn in as it's getting late. You go on up to the state room I'll be right up. I'm just going down to the lounge for a drink."

In the solitude of her room Jane was unable to rest. She turned away from the dressing table and walked over to where her idle typewriter was sitting. She ran her fingers over the keys, worn from much use. "You've written your last story," she said in a low voice. "You'll have a nice long vacation when we reach"---she was interrupted by a deafening explosion! The ship lurched and rocked wildly. Then followed another explosion! The ship staggered and zig-zagged like a drunken man. She heard several gun reports and a loud crash that sounded as if the upper decks had toppled over. She rushed to the door! Out on deck there was a loud turmoil. Women and children were screeching and wailing. The ship now leaned heavily to one side. She could see the shadowy outline of a submarine pulling away into the night.

2 The Last Story

They were sinking! What a story that would make! She could see the headlines in tomorrow's paper, telling us about it. She rushed back to her room and got her typewriter. The officers and crew were lowering the life boats, several of which turned over on hitting the water. Women and children were to go first.

Finally they put her in a life boat along with several others. They were quite a distance from the ship before she thought of Ted. Where was he?

The night grew colder and dense fog drenched her scant clothes. She pulled the silk dressing gown closer around her throat. It was hours between the time that she saw the huge, black, hulk of the ship reel, turn over and sink beneath the waves, and then help came. When she climbed the steps of the rescuing tanker, a man clothed in a Seaman's coat came to meet her, it was Ted.

When they were put ashore in a small Irish town, they made for the nearest telegraph office. Jane took down the receiver of the telephone. "Give me the Paris office of the New York Times..Hello Is this Jim? Well, this is Jane Welch. Ted and I were on the Athenia. Boy! Have we got a story. Get ready to take this down. It's the best thing we've ever done."

Ted walked up behind her, "Didn't you forget something?"

Jane turned around to Ted, putting her hand over the mouthpiece of the telephone, "Well, I guess that cottage will just have to wait."
